PRIVACY POLICY

Whitford Land Transfer Inc. (Whitford) values the trust you have placed in us and we intend to earn your trust each day. At Whitford, maintaining the confidentiality of our customers' personal information is of the highest importance. We would like to take this opportunity to describe our privacy policies and the steps we take to protect our customer's information. This notice describes those practices and how they preserve your privacy in a way that permits Whitford to provide you with the products and services that may be of benefit to you.

Our Policy to Protect Your Personal Information

We value you as a customer and take your personal privacy seriously.

We are committed to protect your privacy.

We maintain physical, electronic and procedural safeguards to protect the confidentiality of customer information. We limit access to personal and financial information to those employees and agents who assist us in providing products and service to you. We will continue to test and update our technology to improve the protection of our information about you.

We want you to know that you can count on us to protect the privacy and security of your customer information, and to provide you with the responsive, professional service you deserve. Our privacy policy will continue to cover information we may collect about you during the course of our relationship as well as after the relationship has ended.

Information We Collect

In order to provide services that respond to our customers' diverse needs, Whitford collects certain personal information. We get most of our information directly from you. The applications you complete, as well as any additional information you provide, including address, telephone number, social security number, and date of birth, for example, generally gives us much of the information we need to know. We may contact you by phone or email to obtain additional information. Customer information is at the heart of our ability to provide superior service to you and administer your customer relationship. In addition to the application, we may collect information from other sources, such as the following: Information is collected about your transaction with us, our affiliates or non-affiliated third parties.

Information We Share With Others

Whitford may use and share all of the information described above, subject to applicable law, with the following (these examples are not intended to be all-inclusive):

In connection with your transaction with us, we may provide information, such as identification, transaction and experience information, to financial service affiliates, such as insurance companies or agents, real estate agents or mortgage lenders, and we may provide information to non-financial service providers, such as those offering consumer products or services.

Third-Party Offers: When it comes to sharing information outside Whitford, we do so only for specific purposes. We may disclose customer information to the following types of outside companies or parties in order to develop special offers for you, which many of our customers find valuable:

Financial service providers such as mortgage lenders or insurance companies; and Non-financial companies such as those offering consumer products and services.

Others: We report information about customers to third parties who preform services on our behalf, such as loan servicing, bill payment, account aggregation services, e-mail services, printing account statements, or collecting debts. We share the minimum amount of information with these companies, and they are not permitted to use our customer information for any purpose beyond the intended service. They are contractually required to maintain the confidentiality of such information. Whitford may also share customer information with third parties for fraud or risk control purposes or for sales of a customer's account; with government entities in response to subpoenas; or with credit reporting agencies. We also disclose information about you to third parties in certain other circumstances, as permitted by law.
